

We aim to displease everyone!

J.J. Johnson - Posted: 03.03.00

I have noticed there's been some complaining about the political viewpoints here at the ol' news ranch. Now that I have a few minutes, allow me to lay out our "official" policy here at Sierra Times.

Feel free to pass this to anyone who wants to know what it is, and even to those who don't.

Quite simply - we hate everyone equally. Well, almost - we give tyrants, traitors, hypocrites and politicians (that's redundant, ain't it?) extra-special treatment.

Give us time, and we'll do all we can to insult each and every political special interest that is alive today. Then we'll make up new ones, and insult them, too. It's called being "an equal-opportunity insulter," and there's probably a federal agency somewhere administering it as a program. If not, there damn well should be.

What I find offensive is when people start yelling and screaming, whining and crying, but their definition of political freedom does not match someone else's, and so they have to condemn the person they're whining about as a whole, and try to suppress them, yelling "Hate crime!" or "Hate speech!" or "Hate thought!" or something. That's why everyone is losing their rights. Jeez, try being "tolerant" for Pete's sake!

Take a look at the socialist liberal pukes, for example. (If you can do so without gagging.) Do you see them nit-picking at each other's issues? Do you see them using those stereotypical names on each other - i.e. "gay bashing", hate-mongering, "anti-partial birth abortion" (pre-natal genocide) - ? Do you see Democrats using this kind of language on each other? Nah. That's 'cause they stick together - like, well, like puke.

So it takes something like the SierraTimes.com to do the name-calling for them. And for the Republicans, who keep acting more and more sort of like fascist mutants of the Democrats. And for all the other groups out there who push their own agendas of victimhood and specialness.

If anyone thinks that SierraTimes.com will be the Digital News Rags that is going to make every visitor comfortable, they shouldn't bother stopping by this ranch. Because whatever issues or stance we take, somebody is sure not to like it.

And we like it that way.

This is 'news with an attitude' and a whole lotta piss and vinegar. It's fire-in-the-belly people who say what they think, and are mighty entertaining in the process. This site wasn't created to be the gateway to some damn Utopia, but to skewer and roast the endless and dangerous idiocies which are sprouting everywhere in this great land of ours.

I am done with my residential bitch for the day. If you will excuse me, I will now get back on my high horse, and go bale some e-hay at the web barn.

Yee Hah,